

HOW Apeel's Plant- Based Coating Works

■ your produce.

naturally occurring, fatty acid-based ingredients are found in plant peels, regular dietary fats, and everyday foods, and they have a long history of safe consumption.

Read more about our commitment to sustainability ↪ here

Non-GMO, non- allergen

Apeel's products are non-GMO and are not sourced from and do not contain regulated allergens like milk, egg, fish, crustacean and molluscan shellfish, tree nuts (almond nuts, brazil nuts, cashew nuts, hazelnuts, macadamia nuts, pecan nuts, pine nuts, pistachio

Can I wash off Apeel coatings?

Yes.

We always want you to have a choice in what you eat. You can remove Apeel coatings by rinsing your fruits or veggies with water and gently scrubbing them using your hands or a soft brush.

Safety

Our coatings are made from ingredients that are found in your everyday foods and have a long history of safe consumption.

But don't just take our word for it. For further reading:

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) affirms mono- and diglycerides as Generally Recognized as Safe (GRAS). This GRAS designation means that a panel of qualified experts considers mono- and diglycerides safe for consumption under the conditions of their intended use, including their application to fruits and vegetables.

The European Food

Safety Authority (EFSA) recently re-evaluated the safety of mono- and diglycerides and found no safety concerns, and mono- and diglycerides continue to be allowed by the European Commission for use in many different food categories in the EU, including fresh produce.

Independent consumer advocacy groups also support the safety of mono- and diglycerides:

The Center for Science in the Public

- Interest which spearheaded the ban on trans fats in foods, rates mono- and diglycerides as “safe” in their database.
- Additionally, the Environmental Working Group, which publishes their own consumer

chemical safety guide has not identified any concerns with mono-
and diglycerides.

Return to homepage

Stay fresh. Sustainability
Products News Center Blog Careers
Product Information
FAQs
Contact Us

© 2024
United States
71 South Los Carneros
Road,
Goleta,
California
93117
1-877-926-5184

Privacy Policy
Terms of Service
Compliance
Cookie Policy
General Terms and Conditions of Sale

© 2024,
Apeel Sciences.
All rights reserved.